Knight's EP Deals With Current Issues

BEACON, July 12 – July 18, 2018 newyorkbeacon.net

Kyle Knight

After releasing three singles and prepping a variety of remixes, Kyle Knight is not done introducing us to his potent messages. With an ever-growing audience of fans, Knight releases his full EP offering music that focuses on current issues.

With a growing national and international fan base, he is set to capture new listeners with his full EP release, The Truth. With each song, he offers up tracks with social awareness, much like the late great Marvin Gaye's "What's Going On" did.

Equal parts storytelling and reality rap, the project is a modern-day journey through the realities of life from every perspective. The depth of lyrical messaging covers it all—political corruption, social justice, addiction epidemics, misogyny and more.

The Truth takes an investigative approach into the most headline grabbing issues, from the people's perspective. Knight will round out fall 2018 by releasing another single, "Addiction" which explores America's prescription pill addiction and the opioid epidemic. The single actively new to the mainstream, he has steadily worked his way toward being one of the most critically aware songwriters of his era.

A listen to his music shows that his talents grew, eventually into songs like, "Hey Sister" (exposing abusive relationships while encouraging female empowerment). With the song released in the wake of the #metoo movement, it provides his empathetic view of the community around him.

Knight's writing reflects a troubled world, and what his life would have become had he given into pressure from the streets. The '90s proved as challenging for Kyle as most any other young Black male. He has gained a respectful following by using innovative orchestration and message-filled rhymes, whether addressing self-empowerment for men and women or hidden government agendas.

With Kyle Knight Music Company as his base, his stronger productions, videos and lyrics reflect a progressive climb towards an award-winning career. If his previous singles are any indication of the power behind his new production team, the project promises to establish him for a long ride with listeners.

With the planned 2019 release of his cumulative tracks together in one album, Kyle Knight 2020 will offer everything recorded to date from, "Hey Sister," to a new song, "X by Necessary." The video shows the life and death of Malcolm X, using lyrically strong agenda against captivating audio and video production.

Knight's recent appearances around the country, including the two-day event for the Survivors of Violence in Cleveland,

The Truth

Ohio offered the biggest indication of listener's growing appreciation. His music has been resonating with the crowds. He debuted the video premiere of "Hey Sister" at the Sugar Bar in Manhattan, along with other appearances in Chicago.

Meanwhile, approached about acting and modeling opportunities, including endorsements and commercial ads, Knight maintains an openness to all the above, with TV being a keen interest. Just knowing that his music is inspiring so many people keeps him open to creating in multiple genres with his talents, stating, "Undeniable product gets responses."

By taking the gift of writing to music, Kyle Knight sets his pen and his voice to lead with example. As hands-on with his songwriting he takes the same approach with his social media and you can find him engaging his fans and new audiences.

Jazz, R&B, Blues and Latin music lovers can end the summer on a high note with cool sounds while enjoying Martha's Vineyard beaches at the "Jazz & Blues Summerfest." Pilgrim Energy will be a major supporter of the Labor Day weekend concerts showcasing women Vocalists [PICTURED] Jazzmeia Horn, Alyson Williams and Maysa. "Summerfest" takes place Thurs., Aug. 30th - Sun., Sept., 2nd in two locations on the island. Festival Producer Sheila Baptista says "We're pleased that Summerfest will celebrate its 9th year and it promises to be the biggest yet! Attendees come from throughout the Northeast and across the United States to enjoy the music, the vibe and view and The Vineyard."
